Payment Options & Withdrawal Times

One of the best ways to identify the best betting websites is by looking at the most recent online betting award winners.

T&Cs, time limits & exclusions apply.

Our View: We like the fact that HeySpin is a throwback to when betting sites were simple to navigate, with football taking centre-stage on the homepage.com, having joined the company in 2019.

Bzeebet has free bets every Thursday, along with a free bet welcome offer and a new bet builder feature that allows me to place same-game multis.

Bet with your head and not your heart.

Use Tools to Stay in Control: The online bookies we recommend have tools to help keep betting fun and under control.

Can you trust paid reviews on TikTok? Here's a look at how to tell if reviews are honest.

Not all paid reviews work the same way. Often, a brand reaches out to a specific influencer on TikTok asking if they would like to review their product on social media as a paid opportunity. If the influencer agrees, both parties will negotiate the payment and then the brand will often send the influencer the product for free (although not always), so that they can take pictures or videos using it for the review.

Are Influencers Honest in Paid TikTok Reviews?

This is why it is best not to trust just any review you see on TikTok, and another reason that TikTok can be bad for everyone. If you are interested in hearing about a product before you buy it though, TikTok reviews can be a helpful resource, as long as you check their credibility first.

How To Tell If a Paid Review Is Honest

Check out the reviewer's profile for a video addressing their standards. If you can't find one, that influencer may not have standards, meaning they could be dishonest.

Watch TikTok Reviews With Caution

In the end, the best person to decide if a product works for you is yourself. TikTok can be great for help with purchasing decisions, but be cautious when buying something just because an influencer said they loved it.
