What betting on yellow cards markets can offer bookmaker? Football bookmakers will offer you these yellow cards betting markets: yellow cards total; very important is who is the referee in the game, because one referee likes to stop the game and give a lot of yellow cards, others don't like to stop the game a lot;

Betting on Cards in Football on Individual Player

You can also bet on a player to be carded at any time in the game, just like you can bet on a player to score at any time.

If you are approaching this with the intention of betting on individual players and finding stats to back those up then these are the two markets you need to be looking at.

There are two things you need to put together to become a successful football betting cards punter.

Stats are key to card betting football, and you need to put together more than just one stat.

This can work well if you only have stats for one team, and something else to consider and think about is the setting of the game.

The best European betting sites offer several key things you should always look out for.

Similarly, the sportsbook operator should give you a great range of sports gambling options, often providing players with additional options such as a live in-play betting service.
