Are stereotypes about young and male true?

According to a 2019 UKGC survey, both males and females are becoming more interested in online gambling; 25% of males and 17% of females surveyed had gambled online in the previous four weeks, up 2% from the previous year.

According to a University of Lethbridge study, 70% of online gamblers are between the ages of 18 and 39, with 47% being between the ages of 20 and 29.

According to a 2019 report by the European Betting and Gaming Association, 16.

The United Kingdom has a 34 percent share of the European market, making it one of the world's largest markets.

The same phenomenon can be seen in a number of Asian countries: no matter how strict the laws are, they can't compete with people's desire to gamble. Similarly, the more experienced a sports bettor is, the higher their expectations for receiving fair odds will be.

According to one Australian study, men are more likely to engage in strategic gambling, such as card games like blackjack and sports betting, while female gamblers prefer games of pure chance, such as slots, though this may not be the case in other parts of the world.
