There's nothing like a friendly little game to liven up the party during the Super Bowl.

The pool host will then try to sell each square on the chart, usually ranging from $5-$100, depending on the type of clientele buying the squares.

So 20 points would be a 0 whereas 35 would be 5 points.

So how do you win? At the end of the first quarter, halftime, third quarter, and final score whatever the score is will be awarded to the person who owns that square.

quare.

If the score is 17-10 at the half with the home team winning, the person with the squares of 7 and 0 would win that portion of the game.

Having the squares 0 and 7 would not help because it would be assigned to the wrong teams.

Usually the total money is divided by 5, and is paid out as follows.

With that number you would get paid $200 for final score and $100 for all other scores.
