For a town that has no casinos, most of our top government offices, the President's residence, and a town of its own, there is no reason why in-person and mobile DC sports betting wouldn't be allowed, right? Exactly! The District of Columbia did legislation to allow geo-fenced limited online, mobile, and in-person sports betting within the town limits.

Each domestic DC mobile betting app is only available within a limited distance from its headquartered partnership, which is typically the stadium or field of a pro team in the region.

The relationship between the nation's capital and local DC sports betting entertainment is a unique one.

Alternatively, and much more simply, legitimate internationally-based online sportsbooks and betting apps (such as the ones listed on this page) provide a safe, streamlined betting experience from anywhere in the capital region.

Major sports games and contests from around the world have betting lines featured on the app, but it will not accept wagers for games played within the District, or contests that involve D.
